Dear Blake,

As your internship at Clique Games comes to a close, I wanted to take a moment to express our heartfelt appreciation for your hard work, dedication, and the significant contributions you've made to our team.

Your time with us has been marked by impressive progress and impactful contributions, particularly in your development work on creating a VR Simulation prototype and developing some of the first mods for our game, Frenzy VR. Your enthusiasm and passion for coding and game development have been evident in every project you tackled.

Some highlights of your achievements during this internship include:

- VR Simulation Prototype: The development of the VR simulation prototype was a key project during your internship. Your innovative approach and technical expertise were crucial in bringing this project to life. The prototype has set a solid foundation for future development and showcases your ability to create immersive VR experiences.
- Frenzy VR Mods: Your work on creating the first mods for Frenzy VR has been outstanding. The creativity and functionality you introduced through these mods have greatly enhanced the gameplay experience and have been well-received by our development team. Your ability to quickly learn, identify issues with our own code, and help enact changes has been particularly impressive.
- Effective Communication and Organization: Your use of tools like Trello to track progress and keep the team updated was exemplary. Your clear communication and willingness to seek feedback ensured that your projects stayed on track and met our high standards.

We are confident that you have a bright future ahead of you in the field of game development or any other path you choose to pursue. Your internship may be ending, but the impact you've had on our projects and team will be long-lasting.

On behalf of everyone at Clique Games, thank you for your contributions. We wish you all the best in your future endeavors and hope to see you continue to grow and succeed.

With gratitude,
